Hemophilia is a complex potentially severe, life-threatening disorder. The wide-ranging needs of people with hemophilia and their families are best met through the coordinated delivery of comprehensive care by a multidisciplinary team of healthcare professionals, in accordance with accepted protocols that are practical and national treatment guidelines.

Comprehensive care promotes physical and psychosocial health and quality of life while decreasing morbidity and mortality. It should cover not only the diagnosis, treatment, musculoskeletal rehabilitation, but all other aspects connected with the main complications of the disease (hepatic, infectious diseases, dental, neuro-psychological disorders, aso).

It is presented the cooperative activity performed in our medical and university center aiming with its multidisciplinary team (hematologists, laboratory specialists, surgeons and orthopedists, dentists, geneticist, hepatologist, immunologist, physiotherapist and musculoskeletal experts, vocational counselors and psychosocial experts, aso) at achieving the ambitious task of a comprehensive care.
